

USING CHATGPT AND AI IN THE WRITING CLASSROOM • WEBINAR
Wednesday, October 11, 2023

HUMANITIES TEXAS TEACHER PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT WEBINAR

October 11, 2023 ---- Using ChatGPT and AI in the Writing Classroom
5:00–6:15 p.m. Jason Crider, Texas A&M University

JASON CRIDER is assistant professor of English at Texas A&M University where he teaches graduate and undergraduate courses in classical and contemporary rhetorical theory, technical and professional writing, rhetorics of disability and digital media, climate fiction, and environmental literature. He is an award-winning writer whose research explores prosthetic computing, the history of cybernetics, augmented reality writing technologies, environmental media, and generative artificial intelligence. He is currently authoring a book about medical device hacking and digital literacy called Prosthetic Rhetoric and a co-edited collection about the ongoing disciplinary subdividing of the humanities, The Humanities Division.

This webinar is made possible with support from the State of Texas and the National Endowment for the Humanities.

